

Code of Conduct

Purpose

To create a strong and cohesive community of music professionals, it is essential for all members to uphold a set of shared values expressed in action as the professional code of conduct.

Adhering to these principles will not only build trust and respect between members, but also lead to a positive professional image which establishes the Guild's credibility and good reputation. This is essential for the Guild to be able to garner the resources necessary to support its members and effectively advocate for the profession.

Code of Conduct

Aspiring to the highest standards

To always seek to achieve the highest standards in music and professional conduct.

Sharing & Learning

To be ready to share expertise and learn to explore new ideas as well as to maintain professional currency.

Integrity, Fairness & Respect

To ensure that professional dealings with fellow musicians, colleagues, clients and the general public are conducted honestly, fairly and respectfully.

Active Participation

To actively participate in the Guild's activities, and being ready to collaborate with and render assistance to fellow members when necessary.

Updated

3rd March 2015